Your company needs to establish, implement and maintain a process to plan and control the temporary or permanent transfer of work and to ensure the conformity of the work to requirements. (Work transfers can, for example, be from one company facility to another, from the company to a supplier, from one supplier to another supplier).